

Subway Surfers

# Summary

In this game, the players will be Jake or one of his friends. You're a graffiti artist that was just caught tagging a train station and need to make a run from the officer and his dog. You'll be running down the train tracks while jumping and diving out of the way of obstacles. As you run, you'll be collecting items like coins and power-ups. There's also an option that lets you ride on a hoverboard that travels above the trains. Once you hit something or get caught by the officer or dog, the game will end and you'll have to start over. If you've collected any keys, though, you'll be able to start playing again at the same point where you lost the game.

The game has been around since May of 2012 and has regular updates that include various special events, including ones that are holiday-themed. Since January of 2013, they try to update the app every 3 or 4 weeks. In addition to the special events, the game has both daily and weekly challenges or hunts that can give you more great rewards. Not only has Subway Surfers been one of the most played games across the world, but it has been installed over 2.5 billion times. In addition to having fantastic graphics, the game has been mostly well-received since it was released. In fact, it was nominated at the 2019 Webby Awards for best action game and best family & kids game. # Gameplay

After loading the game and customizing any settings from the home screen, you'll push on the screen to start playing. The game starts with the character you chose spraypainting graffiti on the side of a train and getting caught by an officer and his dog. As your character starts running, it cuts to the game and you take over. While running down the track, players can swipe left, right, up, or down. Some obstacles, like trains, will require a left or right swipe, while barricades will require either an up or down swipe, depending on the height. When you crash, the game will be over, but it will give you the option to use one of your keys to continue playing where you left off.

As you're running along, you'll be able to collect many items, including a jetpack, magnets, coins, score multipliers, or mystery boxes. Most of the items you collect are designed to help you get more points and the coins you collect can be used to buy in-game items. Different items will have different effects and some are way more desirable than others. In addition, you can unlock up to 17 different hoverboards, each of which has its own abilities and features that are designed to help players.
